NTL will be back At least for next summer

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Bowing to pressure from its membership, the National Training Laboratories Board of Directors has rolled back its decision to phase out NTL's Bethel operations at the end of the current summer session.

It is not yet clear how many participants will be in Bethel next year, but it appears that at least half as many as this year, perhaps considerably more, can be expected. Also unresolved is the nature of the organization's long-term relationship to the town.

NTL, which has been offering training courses in Bethel for more than 40 years, announced in June that it would cease virtually all its operations here at the end of this summer.

In explaining the decision at that time, NTL Executive Director Lennox Joseph cited inadequate training space and facilities in Bethel, increased complaints from staff and participants about the arrangements here, and about the inconvenience of getting to and from Bethel.

Also, Lennox said, the nature of NTL's clientele has changed over the years, and the new breed of participants prefers "the kind of place you see on slick brochures."

The news of an NTL pullout was greeted with dismay by many in-town merchants, some of whom rely on NTL participants for as much as 40 percent of their annual business.

The board decision to pull out was initially presented to the town as ir-

AURORA GETS HELP FROM ABOVE—A C-61 helicopter spent four days last week helping crews at Sunday River Ski Resort install new quad chairlift towers in the skiway's new Aurora Peak area. The helicopters, from Carson Helicopter Service of Parkersburg, Pa., are the largest commercial helicopters on this side of the Mississippi. The helicopter was used to move 14 lift towers, each weighing from 2500 to 3000 pounds, 14 lift arms, weighing up to two tons each, 100 cubic yards of concrete, as well as hay, snowmaking pipes and lumber. Sunday River plans six new trails for its newest lift-serviced peak area, all covered by snowmaking. When the trails are complete, Sunday River will have the second largest trail network in the East.

Gladys Kilgore retires after 25 years as East Stoneham correspondent

The people she reported on do the same things they always have: attend church functions, visit friends and relatives and enjoy small town life

By WENDY HANSCOM

After years of chronicling her neighbor's activities for the Bethel Citizen, Gladys Kilgore of Stoneham is ready to turn in her pen.

Gladys, 95, said her eyesight and ability to write legibly are failing her. "I'll miss writing for the paper," she said. "I've had it on my mind for so many years."

Gladys said she couldn't remember just how many years that writing her column has been a weekly activity. She guessed she'd been writing for about 15 or 20 years—but a quick check through the dusty archives of The Citizen revealed she's been filing reports for over 25 years.

A lifelong Stoneham resident, Gladys said the town has changed since she moved into her grandparents' house in the late 1940s.

"In the years before the state road was put in we were just a very small quiet town of neighbors, and now it's changing," she said. "You used to be able to leave the doors unlocked, but you can't now. But it's still a nice town." Gladys said there has been some minor vandalism in town which makes her wary of leaving her home unattended.

The state road, constructed in the early 1950s, brought increased traffic to the lakes area and an influx of summer residents, Gladys said, but the people she's reported on basically do the same things they always have—attend church functions, visit friends and relatives and enjoy small town life.

Gladys has been a widow since her husband, Leon, died in 1957. The couple had no children. She said she can't imagine why so many older folks complain about being lonely and bored.

"A lot of people tell how lonely they are," she said, "but I never get lonely. I read a lot and have my TV and my cat and my neighbors drop in. I don't have a chance to get lonely."

Throughout her years alone Gladys fought loneliness and boredom by RETIRING CORRESPONDENT—For over 25 years Gladys Kilgore, 95, of Stoneham has reported on her neighbors' activities for The Bethel Citizen. Gladys said she started writing her column when the Brown family owned the paper and has enjoyed watching it become "more modern" over the years. She lives alone in the house that belonged to her grandfather, Henry Parker, a Civil War Veteran. Gladys has been a member of Daughters of Veterans of the Civil War for many years.

Apartment project hits snag

Failure to file a required DEP application may delay the start of construction on the Bethel Park Apartments project.

Although part of the project is being built on wetlands, the amount of wetlands involved is small enough that the developers were able to avoid full-scale DEP review and were only required to file a permit by rule application.

But they didn't, and it now turns out that the site plan submitted to, and approved by, the Bethel Planning Board does not meet permit by rule regulations.

In a letter to Town Manager Madeleine Henley, Aaron Shapiro, project development coordinator for Gleichenman & Co., said that in order to meet the requirements the road layout on the plan would have to be altered.

A five-foot wide sidewalk planned for the right side of the access road would have to be moved to the left side and narrowed to three feet, Shapiro wrote, terming the changes "extremely minor."

But the road design for the project had been worked out over the course of many meetings with the Bethel selectmen—who must approve the road design before the planning board will consider the plan.

Shapiro asked that the selectmen approve the changes at their meeting Monday evening, but the board demurred. Citing concerns about slope changes and drainage problems if the alterations are approved, they instructed Henley to ask the developer to address those issues and to appear before the board at its next meeting.

Shapiro told The Citizen Tuesday that he expected the new complication would create "only minor delays, part of a week or so," for the project.

The site for Bethel Park Apartments, off Mason Street, has been cleared, but construction has not yet begun.

Bethel selectmen prepare to set up transfer station

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The Bethel Board of Selectmen has authorized Town Manager Madeleine Henley to begin the paperwork required for setting up an in-town transfer station.

Faced with a looming Department of Environmental Protection deadline for closing down the town landfill (Jan. 1, 1992), the selectmen Monday evening voted to have Henley submit a permit-by-rule application to the DEP to allow the town to set up a small transfer station behind the present recycling center.

Currently, approximately half the town's residential solid waste and most of its commercial solid waste is picked up at curbside by D&E Sanitation and transported to the Norway-Paris Transfer Station or to BAR Co. in Oxford.

Commercial and residential waste not picked up by D&E is disposed of by residents at the town landfill on Route 2.

However, with the DEP deadline for closing the landfill approaching, the selectmen have known for some time that they would eventually have to make a decision about how to continue disposing of the town's solid waste.

At their regular meeting Monday, Henley presented them with a report outlining several options: whole town curbside pickup, partial curbside pickup in conjunction with a small transfer station, construction of a new large capacity transfer station or a new landfill.

Following a short discussion, the last two options were ruled out as prohibitively expensive. The first, whole-town curbside pickup, was similarly eliminated due to cost—approximately $50,000 a year more than partial curbside pickup. The selectmen also worried that whole-town pickup would have a detrimental effect on the town's recycling effort.

The three selectmen present Monday (Art Gilbert, Norman Fulham and Henry Dombkowski) then voted unanimously to go along with Henley's recommended option of partial curbside pickup and a small transfer station.

The plan calls for Henley to begin preparing the necessary paperwork immediately and for D&E Sanitation to stop hauling waste south—and to take it instead to the town landfill, where one waste cell remains to be filled.

Henley noted that the remaining cell at the landfill must be filled in any case before it is closed and sealed, and if it was not filled with trash, the town would have to pay to fill it with gravel.

She estimated that the town would save approximately $30,000 in transportation and tipping fees by not hauling waste to Norway and Oxford for the remainder of the year.

That money, she said, could be put toward the cost of setting up and operating the transfer station.

Henley said that once the permit by

Technical training in the Oxford Hills

As our nation continues its transition to a high technology and service-oriented economy, it is clear that the nation's workforce must learn new skills to remain competitive. One school in Norway, Maine is helping to pioneer educational efforts to meet the challenges of the changing market demands.

The Oxford Hills Technical School (OHTS), in collaboration with the Training and Development Corporation in Maine, has proposed a program designed to broaden its education services and increase successful transitions to employment. This effort, designed for low-income rural youth and adult learners, will expand education opportunities and increase coordination between the school's training services and businesses in the community of Oxford County.

The OHTS program is one of the first of its kind in the nation under a new federal demonstration program included in legislation to reauthorize the Carl D. Perkins Vocational Education Act. The demonstration program, created to encourage innovation in technical training curriculum, provides for ten five-year demonstration programs at model vocational schools around the country.

OHTS currently provides vocational programs for 11th and 12th graders and aims to expand its services to ninth and 10th graders as well as to adults. The measures proposed by OHTS include the increased use of workplace as learning sites, computer linkage to satellite courseware for accessing nationally distributed learning resources, and increased flexibility of schedules and office hours to provide for interested students who also work.

The school would also establish a summer learning institute, expand career counseling and mentor services, and develop a systematic businesses recruitment program.

The OHTS initiative is to be conducted as part of a two-site demonstration program with Indian Hills Community College in Ottumwa, Iowa, an area that faces some of the same training needs as Oxford County. I am pleased that funding of $1 million for OHTS was included in a larger funding bill recently approved by the Senate Appropriations Committee.

This type of vocational education can play an important role in helping the nation adapt to the needs of a dynamic market economy. The U.S. Department of Education estimates that 18 of the 20 fastest growing occupations in the country will require at least two years of postsecondary education. However, over half of U.S. high school students do not go on to college. Vocational training can provide business, computer and other skills necessary to meet the needs of tomorrow's jobs, as well as prepare students for continued education.

Vocational education can also help our nation accommodate new trends in the mobility of the American worker. It is estimated that most workers will change jobs more than five times during their working years. The increasing mobility of America's workforce underscores the importance of an education that provides a broad range of skills that could be applied in a variety of work environments.

The OHTS program will serve as a model for improving the structure of vocational education in Maine and across the country, and I hope that funding for this important initiative is included in the bill passed into law. Vocational schools are an integral component of our nation's education and training resources, and we must do all we can to ensure both their quality and accessibility.

Letters to the editor

BRING ON THE JETS

To the Editor:
I find it ironic that it was 10 years ago that the low level flight controversy first came to a head. At that time, the issue was disruption of wildlife. The following is a letter written by my late father 10 years ago on this matter. I hope you find it appropriate to reprint.

FLIGHT DEFENDED

To the Editor:
To start with, it makes me wonder what has become of the idea of "love of country," "patriotism," and standing behind the ideals of a society that needs the backing of its people in order to survive. The point that I would like to make in this letter is one that is of concern to us all; and that is the need for the low level and other training flights of our U.S. military planes in this and other areas of our state and other territory.

The way I interpret the meaning of some of these letters against these flights, is that the people on these missions are merely flying around for a joy ride and in such a case should fly somewhere else. These flights aren't necessary, especially if they are going to bother me.

Well, I'd like you to know, and I speak with some experience as a person who has had the privilege, yes, I say "privilege," to have been able to serve my country in WWII, that this kind of training is absolutely necessary for the future. Someone wrote, "Why don't they train over the ocean?" They do. Most of the activities from the base in Brunswick is carried out over water as anti-submarine patrols.

But not all matters of offensive action in the future would be confined to such. I don't believe there are many defense factories, missile sites or other military targets built on water. So these pilots have to be trained to carry out their missions over all types of terrain and no doubt this area is one that suits the needs.

On the other hand, to be fair about this, I wonder if one or two of these airplanes that might pass over an area that is inhabited by, let's say deer, would cause these animals any more harm or concern than two or three dozen snowmachines passing through the same place, which they frequently do, and often when things are quiet.

This doesn't mean I'm against snowmachines, I've had a couple myself, but I believe it's a reasonable assumption that if the wildlife can survive that noise, they can also survive a few planes flying over.

It's quite possible that if the crews of the aircraft involved in the failed rescue mission in Iran had had extensive training in desert conditions, the likes of which they ran into over there, they might have had more success in their ventures.

All I can say is any military plane with the U.S. insignia on it can fly over my property day or night, at any altitude it desires. I much prefer it to one that some day could fly over with the hammer and sickle on it, simply because someone wasn't properly trained.

Some people will read this and say "nonsense—it couldn't happen." Well, in that case, maybe Pearl Harbor didn't happen either. Keep them flying.

Robert J. Lowe
Bethel

In conclusion, we should always continue to support the armed services of this country, and not only in time of conflict, but also in times of peace. The western Maine region is ideal for their maneuvers.

Hear, hear—to the servicemen of this country, both active and inactive and those we memorialize. As my father said, "They can fly over my property anytime," and as far as I'm concerned, the lower the better. An A-10 or F-16 or any other military jet is a massive and powerful piece of machinery, which takes my breath away watching them fly. I agree, "Keep them flying."

Bethel planners seek legal help on dealing with town office work

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The renovation of Bethel's Town Office, completed in phases over the past three years, appears to have built town officials into a corner.

The town planning board voted last week to seek legal advice on how to deal with the renovations, which were never submitted for planning board review.

The vote came at the prodding of Rick Whitney, who has written a number of letters to town officials complaining that the town uses a double standard in the application of its building regulations.

According to Whitney, if a private citizen or business proposes to renovate or change the use of a piece of property, the planning board must review the project, which is then reviewed by the town's Site Plan Review Ordinance. If the project does not comply, it is rejected.

But, Whitney contends, when the town itself wants to undertake a similar project, the planning board regularly looks the other way—giving tacit approval without even a cursory review of the proposed work.

As a case in point, Whitney pointed to renovation of the meeting room in the town office. A room which once held 10 people now holds 40, he argued, and the increased traffic involved should have automatically triggered a review under the site plan ordinance.

Yet the town never submitted the work for review, and the planning board—which now meets in the room in question—never sought to assert its authority over the project.

Board member Reggie Brown acknowledged that other town projects, including the recycling center and water district shed, had also been spared formal site plan review.

But, he asked Whitney and the half dozen audience members who had turned out to lend their support, "Do you want us to close down the town office and build it somewhere else?"

Real estate broker Ginger Kelly responded that the town should have to play by the same rules the

T-SHIRT DESIGN SOUGHT FOR MAHOOSUC HIKE/WALK/RUN

To the Editor:

The Mahoosuc Arts Council is looking for a new design for the fourth annual Hike/Walk/Run long sleeve T-shirts.

We would like to invite interested Western Maine artists, professionals and amateurs alike, to support the Arts Council by submitting designs to the Mahoosuc Office at Gould Academy by Friday, Sept. 6.

This annual fundraising event for Mahoosuc Arts, the Hike/Walk/Run will take place on Saturday, Oct. 12 at Sunday River Ski Resort. Last year over 150 hikers, skiers and runners competed in the race and this year the Council is expecting an even larger turnout.

The Arts Council is interested in a design that represents the arts, the mountains and the competitors, and we encourage artists to incorporate bright colors into their art work. The creator of the design chosen for the shirts will receive two complimentary shirts and have her/his signature printed on the shirts.

For more information, please contact the Mahoosuc Arts Office at 824-3575.

Woodstock shoreland zoning hearing draws turnout

The Woodstock planning board held a public hearing last week to discuss the revision of the town's shoreland zoning ordinances.

Only a half-dozen residents joined the town officials at the meeting.

Planning board member Gordon Brown told those who did attend that the planning board followed the state's minimum requirements in updating the zoning plan.

The most significant revisions include the creation of a commercial zone district and a 75-foot stream setback for new construction, Brown said. In addition, setback restrictions on new construction on ponds and lakes increased from 75 feet to 100 feet.

Brown said anyone considering any type of construction within the 100-foot setback would have to get Department of Environmental Protection approval.

A special town meeting has been scheduled for Aug. 29 at the town office to vote on the proposed changes.

Brown said if the changes are approved, they will take effect on Jan. 1, 1992. The deadline for towns to revise shoreland zoning to meet state requirements is Dec. 31, 1991. "If we don't do it by then," Brown said, "The state will do it for us and the town will have to pay for it."

THIS WEEK AT THE

Moses Mason House

The August monthly meeting of the Bethel Historical Society was held at historic Odeon Hall in honor of the Cole Block's centenary.

Society director, Stanley R. Howe briefly sketched some of the history of the building from its construction in 1891 by two East Bethel brothers, Fred and Elmer Cole. The architect for the building was the well-known Maine designer George M. Coombs of Lewiston.

It was supposed to have been built of brick, but financial considerations dictated wood construction. Even so, the building was soon lost to Bethel Savings Bank, which held the mortgage and continued to own the building until its gift to the town in 1982.

Since its earliest days, the building has been a center of commercial and political activity. Several businesses and offices have been located on the first floor, including the Bethel Citizen since 1908 and its predecessor the Bethel News, which began in 1896.

Also on the first floor were the operations of the Bethel Savings Bank (1905-1945), Casco National Bank (1945-1968), a jewelry store, insurance offices, law office, photography studio, etc. On the second floor was long the offices of the selectmen, assessors, and overseers of the poor and of course the Odeon Hall where countless dances, plays, socials, shows, concerts, lectures, chautauqua meetings, Roman Catholic Services, silent movies and later the "talkies" were held.

Gould Academy graduations were held here for many years (until the construction of Bingham Gymnasium in 1922) and lively town meetings were order of the day until they were moved to Telstar in the late 1960s.

Howe ended his talk by reviewing this proud history and urging that those interested work to see what might be done to keep the Cole Block serving the people of Bethel in the next century as it has in the past 100 years.

During the business meeting President Jane Hosterman announced that the next meeting would be the annual one and commemorate the Society's twenty five years of existence. Featured speakers for the annual meeting will be Earle G. Shettleworth, Jr., Director of the Maine Historic Preservation Commission, who will give a slide presentation, "The Palace in the Woods: The New England Summer Hotels of John Calvin Stevens."

A potluck supper will precede the annual meeting and the 1991 recipient of the Majorie MacArthur Noll Volunteer Service Award will be announced. A nominating committee consisting of Mary Keniston, Frank Vogt and Arlene Lowell was elected to present a slate of officers and one trustee for the annual meeting. "The Palace of the Month" was announced as a 1920s map of the Bethel Inn recreation trails, the gift of Allen Fraser. Persis Post announced the refreshments which included a bag of popcorn, which brought back for many, memories of Odeon Hall when it was used for movies.

NEW RANGERS ON DUTY—Grafton Notch State Park is the latest area targeted to raise funds for the state's ailing budget. Blue collection cans are now in place at four of the park's attractions. Local park's no longer fee free

By WENDY HANSKOM

Grafton Notch State Park has some new rangers on patrol, but they're quite different from the usual friendly caretaker in green fatigues—they're cool blue and immobile.

"Iron rangers" is what the state Bureau of Parks and Recreation is calling this new breed of attendant.

The iron ranger is a bright blue can, mounted on a pole with an accompanying sign asking visitors to deposit an entrance fee in the can.

In Grafton, the collection cans have been installed at Screw Auger Falls, Moose Caves, Spruce Meadows and at the parking lot near the Appalachian Trail heads.

Each asks for $1 per person. Children under 12 and those with season passes are not charged.

"The iron rangers have been placed in parks that previously didn't charge a fee, but where we had a staff maintaining them," said Steve Curtis of the bureau's operation and maintenance department. "It just doesn't make sense to put a facility in and hire someone to collect fees."

Curtis said the new collection stations are also being tried in seven other state parks and campgrounds throughout Maine.

The parks bureau is trying to increase revenue as part of a budget agreement with the state. Curtis said the bureau requested $7 million for maintenance of the parks, but received only $100,000. The bureau received $230,000 altogether in state funding this year, but it had to agree to raise fees and increase revenue in order to get the money, he said.

Some of the user fees collected will go back to the towns, Curtis said, and the rest will be put into the state's general fund.

Curtis said the donations to the parks bureau are voluntary. "We're seeking the public's cooperation in this," he said. "Some of the parks built back in the '50s and '60s haven't had routine repair and are in dismal condition."

Grafton Notch State Park is under Regional Park Supervisor Ken Wiley's authority. Wiley said the bureau hires one seasonal ranger to maintain the park, and the new fees will help offset his salary. The ranger collects trash, cuts brush, answers the public's questions, aids lost and injured hikers and maintains trails, scenic vistas, shelters, picnic tables, grills and toilet facilities, Wiley said.

The new iron rangers have only been in place for a little over a week, Wiley said, but so far public response has been positive.

Curtis said the parks bureau hopes that 30 to 40 percent of those visiting a park with an iron ranger will pay the entrance fee.

rule application is filed with the DEP, the agency might back off a bit on the Jan. 1 deadline.

For example, she said, the town might be able to continue hauling solid waste to the landfill until the remaining cell was completely full, as well as continuing to use the site for disposal of demo debris and temporary storage of white goods and tires.

Henley said later that the plan approved Monday by the selectmen can probably be paid for from the town's current solid waste budget.

In other action Monday, the selectmen voted to require the Red Top Diner to install a grease trap—in order to eliminate continuing problems caused by grease in the sewer system.

The board also approved a loan/grant application of $384,000 for Phase Two of the Downtown Revitalization Project, rejected a road plan modification for Bethel Park Apartments (see box), approved revised police policies regarding high-speed chases and night-sticks, and appointed Police Chief Dale Bellmen to do the background checks for concealed weapon permits—the checks had previously been the responsibility of the town clerk.

More river canoe sites will soon be available

Substantial progress has been made on proposed boat access sites along the Androscoggin River between Shelburne N.H. and Rumford, according to Steve Wight, president of Friends of the Androscoggin.

In Gilead, Boise Cascade Corp. has completed a pole harvest and thinning operation in the pine stand downstream of the Androscoggin bridge (with work carried out by Myers Logging of Bethel) and is now constructing a road, parking area, and carry path to the river.

In West Bethel, a contract for construction of improvements to the Newt's Landing site directly behind Newton & Tebbetts Co. has been awarded by the town of Bethel.

Work at this site will follow design specification provided by the Maine State Department of Parks and Recreation Boating Facilities Coordinator Richard Skinner. The work will consist of a set of timber steps descending the back of the river to allow easy put in/take out of canoes and small boats and an improved parking facility.

The Friends are also working with the Boating Facilities office toward the purchase of a site in Hanover just downstream of Bear River Rips. This site was once owned by Chamberlain Resort who offered to lease it to the town of Hanover, but it is presently held by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. FDIC has expressed interest in transferring the site to a municipal or non-profit entity.

As sites currently in progress become realities and positive experience is gained in managing them the Friends hope that still more will be offered. It is the goal of the Friends to create in the Shelburne to Rumford river corridor a recreational resource consisting of designated public use sites, including access points, motel and bed-and-breakfast stops, restaurants, camping areas, etc.

Locations of these sites will be clearly defined on maps to enable local residents and visitors to enjoy the river recreationally without detriment to other land uses along its banks.

Friends of Androscoggin

cookout set for Sunday

The Friends of the Androscoggin will gather on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 25, at 4 p.m. at the Riverview Motel to celebrate summer and enjoy a cookout and a tour of the motel's new nature trail.

Guest of honor at the gathering will be Cathy Fallon of Norway. Cathy is a graduate student of Yale School of Forestry and will be doing her masters degree project on land use issues along the Androscoggin River, under the sponsorship of Quebec Labrador Foundation, Friends of the Androscoggin and Mahosuc Land Trust.

Anyone interested in the future of the Androscoggin River is cordially invited to attend. The cookout will be potluck with chicken and beverage provided. Guests are asked to bring a salad or dessert. For further information call Melinda Remington at Riverview Motel, 824-2808.

Is Chronic Fatigue Syndrome a Disease?

Within the last few years, a condition referred to as "chronic fatigue syndrome" has been described in the medical literature. According to recent articles, there is debate as to whether or not this is a disease. The debate revolves around its cause, how to diagnose it, and how it should be treated. On one side are experts who claim that the condition may not exist at all. An equal number of experts seem to point to a health problem with sudden onset in previously otherwise healthy individuals. According to these experts, people of all ages, occupations, and income are affected, with women experiencing the condition more often than men or children.

It is speculated that some type of virus causes the victim to become very tired. Bed rest may not help. The fatigue may be so severe as to cause the person's normal activity level to be less than half of what it was for the previous six months. There may be mild fever, sore throat, muscle weakness, joint pain, and sleep disturbances. One of the most common symptoms of chronic fatigue syndrome is mental depression. Treatment of chronic fatigue syndrome varies with symptoms. Prescription antidepressant medicines have helped a number of individuals. Other treatments may become apparent as we learn more about this interesting, yet poorly described condition.

revocable. The only way to change it, Lennox said in June, would be for NTL's 436 member to vote out the current 12-member board.

Over the course of the summer, however, the board backed off considerably from that hard-line position. As work of the decision spread among the membership, and as members and participants met in Bethel for this summer's schedule of workshops, opposition to the decision mounted.

Members criticized not only the decision itself, but also the way it had been arrived at and communicated.

NTL member Howard Lamb, who spent most of the summer in Bethel, began a newsletter to provide a forum for the members' concerns.

A letter from NTL member Bill Golden is representative of many in the 10-issue newsletter.

"I really couldn't believe it!" Golden said of the decision to abandon Bethel. Of the board process that led to that decision, he wrote: "A basic value NTL has always sought to help others learn was that problems can't be effectively solved without the participation of those affected by the solution. Where was consensual validation in this decision?"

Golden called the membership survey used to justify the board decision "loaded" and "a half-hearted sop to democratic decision making."

Of Bethel itself, he wrote: "The very isolation of Bethel, its face-to-face community, and its rural beauty helped both staff and participants learn and nurture core NTL values."

Other letters seconded Golden's observations. "I deplore these choices," wrote Arthur Freedman. "They suggest the type of unilateral political power tactics to which I have persisted in believing NTL was philosophically and ideologically opposed—in spite of the Board's and the Executive's behavior to the contrary over the years."

Of the "mission statement" used to validate NTL's new direction, Freedman wrote: "It is so broad and all-encompassing that it says nothing."

Does it mean that we have been propelled into international ventures as compensation for our domestic ineffectiveness?"

The newsletter also proposed a membership referendum to declare the original decision "null and void." By the conclusion of the summer session, 31 percent of the membership had responded, opting by a 3 to 1 margin to overturn the board's decision.

A committee of Bethel residents also met over the course of the summer and, among other initiatives, offered to provide detailed assistance to NTL in addressing the concerns that led to the decision to leave town.

In July, the organization's board issued a clarification of its original decision and agreed to hold some courses in Bethel next summer.

The matter is also expected to be taken up again at a board meeting in mid-September.

Plans for next summer

Over the course of this summer, NTL's plans for its next season in Bethel have been "changing all the time," according to program director Nancie Appleman-Vassili.

At the moment plans call for NTL to offer three courses a week here, over a nine-week period.

While the number of courses will be less than in the past, she said, NTL hoped the increased space that would be made available for each course would lead to a larger number of participants in each.

"We want to maximize the quality of programs," she said.

Last summer nearly 1,000 NTL participants took part in courses in Bethel. It is uncertain as yet how many participants can be expected next summer, but estimates range from 50 to 90 percent of the usual number.

At least one change planned for next summer will come as good news to local lodging establishments. Appleman-Vassili said NTL did not plan to reopen the "Clusters" lodging units, which currently accommodate 32 participants at a time. The decision will add substantially to the number of participants seeking lodging in town.

Current plans also call for a reduced level of administrative support located in Bethel and for the NTL Resource Center to be open on a limited schedule.

The dining service, offering lunch and a continental breakfast, will be continued, she said.

The course offerings for next summer currently include personal growth, trainer training, management and human interaction courses. The human interaction courses will be offered every two weeks, she said, rather than weekly—as they currently are.

keeping busy. She worked as a cook and housekeeper in her community. She is also a member of the Stoneham Congregational Church, The Waterford Friendly Senior Citizens and The Daughters of Veterans of the Civil War.

Gladys says she no longer gets out to church every Sunday, but her minister brings her tapes of the recorded sermons.

Being able to live independently gives Gladys a great deal of satisfaction, but she hasn't done it alone. She said she appreciates the support her community has given her. "I have especially good neighbors," she said. "They're always bringing me something."

A neighbor mows her lawn and a nearby cousin does the laundry. The postman even interrupts his motor route to deliver her mail by hand.

Gladys also enjoys keeping in touch with the world outside her community. A favorite nephew subscribes to the Lewiston Sun-Journal for her and she talks almost daily with old friends on the telephone.

"The days just go by before I know it," Gladys said. She admits to being somewhat of a night owl and then sleeping late the next day. She said she especially enjoys sitting up to see NBC's Tonight Show with Johnny Carson.

Gladys used to raise Siamese cats, and her Siamese, Ching, is now a constant companion. Ching is an avid hunter and never fails to bring home his trophies, which Gladys says she is forced to reluctantly admire. But recently one of the cat's catches was more than a challenge for Gladys' admiration.

She let Ching in from the porch one evening without turning the light on. "I turned the light on and he had a snake. I'm awfully afraid of snakes," she said. "The snake went under the kitchen table and then into the living room under the TV and it seemed like he was everywhere. I thought, 'What am I going to do?'"

Gladys decided to battle with the snake herself. So, using her walker to get around and armed with long dowel, she went after him. "Ching wasn't any help, he kept catching him and letting him go," she said. "I opened the door and then managed to get him on the dowel, but just as I got to the door he fell off."

"I was going to call my neighbor, but I tried again and managed to get him draped over the dowel and out the door. Now, I don't let that cat in before I see what he's bringing me."

Animals have always been a big part of Gladys' life. She enjoys almost daily visits from a neighbor's dog. She also feeds hummingbirds in the summer and puts out seeds for the winter birds.

She said she's occasionally gotten herself "into trouble" for telling people to take better care of their animals, but said she doesn't care much about what other people think of her defending animal rights. "I don't like to see anybody mistreating animals," she said.

Now that she's retired from her newspaper career, Gladys has passed her column on to Eleanor Nelson. As a correspondent for all these years, Gladys has received a free subscription to The Citizen. Living alone on a limited budget forces her to pinch pennies, so Gladys said she had planned to borrow a copy of The Citizen from a neighbor.

But in appreciation for her dedication to the newspaper and her community, The Citizen will continue to send Gladys her weekly paper.

Small woodlot owners to hold 10th field day

Small woodland owners (SWOAM) from Western Maine will gather for their 10th annual field day on Saturday Aug. 24. The theme for the day will be forest site conversion.

Every person who owns a woodlot, small or large, at some time has sites that grow the wrong trees or wishes to change the kind of trees growing there, either for wood production, for wildlife enhancement, for esthetic or personal reasons.

The chosen site in Poland for this year's meeting has been burned over several times by forest fires started from the old railroad line that crossed the flat plains in the area. This gave the present owner, Fred Huntress Jr., of Poland an opportunity to try several methods of regeneration.

Besides seeing the results of these conversions, the group will view several equipment displays, have early coffee and donuts, bring their own lunch for a noon break at Range State Park next door, and visit a bark grinding operation at Jolly Farmer site at 2 p.m.

The meeting will start at 9:30 a.m. (8:30 for coffee and display). Follow signs from the blinker on Route 26 at Poland Corner onto Poland Corner Road, right on Bailey Hill Road to site. From Auburn left from Route 121 on Empire Road in Minot, 3 miles to right on Plains Road and 1 mile to right on Bailey Hill Road to site. The public interested in woodlot management is invited to join the fun.

Robert Billings has done some work in the historical museum. Larry Billings gave a lantern. The historical society has received a lot of farm items to add to its collection this summer. Among other things it has a plow, seeder, several horse collars, horse shoes, a seed poster, a milk carrier, basket shaped like a chicken, etc.

Larry wants to share the following recollections "I remember my grandmother's farm, the old house and barn; workhorses, hens, milking time, the vegetable plots and garden, flowers running wild, haying on an island in the middle of the river, the maple sugar house, and many other wonderful, exciting things."

At the August meeting of the Woodstock Historical Society the members enjoyed an indoor picnic at the museum because of the rain. Sandra Brooks displayed some of her rugs and told about making them. The next meeting of the society will feature an informal program by Annie Crockett, past president and treasurer of the organization. The men are reminded they are to provide refreshments.

Judith Grover tent #17 held a picnic at Stevens camp on Songo Pond, Monday evening, and 25 attended. The children enjoyed swimming. Everyone had a good time, good food, and a beautiful evening.

The Bryant Pond Church Sunday School held a rally day and fun time at the ball field on Tuesday evening. Around 50 were present, hot dogs, chips, drink and ice cream were served after which a sing-a-long of Sunday School Songs was held with a verse of scripture explained. Then a softball game, bean bag, tug of war and other games were played. A good time was had by all. A new year will start at the Sunday School in September. Classes for all ages everyone welcomed.

It was announced that a picnic and musical get-together will begin at 3:30 p.m. August 25 at the church. All are welcome. The morning services will still be at 9 a.m.

The Bachelders held a family reunion at Small Falls, Maine with about 200 members attending. Ras and Karlene Bachelder were there. Afterward Ras and Karlene went to Stratton to visit with his father Aaron Bachelder.

Roger Hanscom celebrated his birthday Wednesday, August 14 at the Rumford Home Health Center with friends and relatives. He received many cards and gifts. Louise Tetley and Gil Seeley were there. We all wish him many more.

Ah, yes, a beautiful cool August morning to start this week off with. Where has the summer gone? Kids will soon be going back to school and the fall months upon us. That is only too clear when one goes picking blackberries and can see a change in the leaves in a few places. Just a reminder of what is coming and that one better prepare for it.

It was good to get the much needed rain though, and things should look better and grow better.

Last Monday evening was our Grange meeting for past and present lecturers and we had a good bunch of for it. Had a supper preceding the meeting which was real good and plentiful also. Hope all enjoyed the program.

Russell has been feeding his plants in the garden as usual and they look good considering the dryness we have had. He has rain barrels that fill with the rain when we get it but they were sure getting low before these last two storms. What a relief not to have to tote water to the garden from the barrels. Where there are four families using from the well, we don't like to water the garden with it when the weather is dry as in the past weeks so Russell has a contraption that holds water and he hauls the water up the hill to the garden and waters the plants at their roots.

Tuesday evening was Pomona Grange at West Paris and there was a large crowd there. Russell and Peggy went. Wednesday evening they had been asked to go to Excelsior Grange in Poland to be officers there, so went and again I stayed home. They had a good time at both meetings and were glad they went.

Friday was Russell's day to go for therapy so I took him down and went to get groceries while he was there. Then in the afternoon, I went to the doctors for treatment. Peggy has been busy this past week with getting ready for her grandson James Merrill's wedding, which took place on Saturday. She was making the wedding cake for them and though I didn't see it at all, I am sure it was lovely as her cakes usually are. She said many complimented her on the taste.

Her granddaughter Samantha came down to help her transport the cake to Bethel for the wedding and reception that followed and they were gone at ten in the morning and didn't get home till late in the afternoon.

Sunday was to have been the Rowe reunion where it rained last Sunday but though we went down for dinner and to visit, not very many folks showed up. As one lady said when something like that is postponed, it is never as good as it might have been in the first place. It was held at Michael and Wynona Woolf's in Auburn and they have such a lovely big back yard there would have been plenty of room for all who would have come. Those who didn't come don't know the fun they missed.

While there, we went out back and picked lots of blackberries so I am to make some jelly when I get all together. That should taste good.

Hope Lovejoy went with the young people's group from the Baptist Church for an overnight camp out at Hastings campgrounds near Gilead. There were 18 young folks with the minister so he may have had his hands full but hopefully they were all good and had a good time.

The Lovejoys and McKeens went up on the Kingfield Hill Road to Haverhill's for a birthday get-together for her sister on Sunday. All had a grand time I am sure.

Franklin Grange will be having music and talent night the 19th and another meeting to keep in mind is past master's night which will take place on September 16. A potluck supper will precede the meeting. Installation of officers will take place on Sept. 2 at Franklin Grange with West Paris joining us. Conant's group will do the installation I believe.

Think I have said enough so hope everyone enjoys this weather and has a good week.

Newry

By JIM ANDERSON

Some people have commented to me that this column sounds like I am telling them the local news face to face. I look at it as a chance to let a bigger audience know what is going on with all the things that I know of are going on in town. And of course, they are from my eyes. As in other issues, you may have gotten the idea that I think a lot of those I know from the fire department and around the Newry area. As to who is visiting who, I need to hear from these people to print the visitations.

Now to what has happened this week. On Friday August 9, after doing my usual chores in Bethel, I went over to my second home (as mother has hinted), the Sunday River fire station. After dropping off some mail that I had for the chief to look at, I decided to try and use the maxim to wash off the dirt that the chief and his son had gotten on the drive way. After pulling out the maxim, I could not get the booster hose to spray the driveway. I called Alan Fleet and realized that what I wanted to do was easily done by getting the hose from the Bear River fire house. I went and got the garden hose and did what I could.

Saturday, August 10, was the third soggy Sudbury Canada Days in a row, but The Children's Parade was held inside again. Maybe next year, as grand marshal, I'll come with full turnout gear and it will be a hot, sunny day.

Monday August 12, I was drawing out at my second home with the chief and his son Matt. They were finishing landscaping and I was stuffing a forestry bag with hose.

Tuesday night was a County Republican meeting with Dr. Howe in Fryburg. At the end of the meeting we had the five state representatives from Oxford county speak. Included was Bethel's own, Al Barth. Being involved with fire departments I questioned the five about what seems to be increasing state mandates to fire departments. They mentioned that there are some in state government that would like to see the fire departments go the way of the school administrative districts, in other words a regional approach to fire departments. I'm more concerned with political interference in volunteer fire departments. It seems that any time the state mandates, it doesn't supply any money for towns to do their bidding.

Wednesday, August 14 was paint and run day. Nice and hot and sunny. Saw Dr. Howe and his parents in two separate trips around Bethel. Stopped at my second home to put new pictures in the photo album. Well, that's all the news I know of. Glad for the rain, but we do need more!

Heavy lifting on Aurora Peak

Sharon McNeill

SEATTLE 2 MAINE—Douglas Vollmer, a biology teacher at North Yarmouth Academy, and his daughter Jennifer stopped to spend the night with Gould Headmaster Bill Clough and wife Ki last Thursday evening. The visit was a bit out of the ordinary, in that Doug and Jennifer would begin the next morning, the last leg of a cycling journey which started in Seattle, Washington on June 24 and would end in Yarmouth on Aug. 16. Their route, though primarily through the northern United States, also took them into Canada. Jennifer graduated from the University of Arizona in May and thought that biking home across country with dad was a great way to end her college days and begin her professional career. Jennifer said that the sign on the back of her dad's bicycle "Seattle 2 Maine" drew many cheers and friendly honks from both pedestrians and motorists along the route.

George and Dolly Olson went camping up above Jackman last week for their vacation. They enjoyed it very much.

A new hot pack or whatever was put down on the Middle Intervale Road makes for a much nicer ride now.

Diana Howe and the kids did not make it to Ripogenus Dam last week, but have left for this week. They will stay for a week with Allen Howe, who works there.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Bickford and Cindy Bickford of Lisbon Falls visited at the Hastings Homestead on Aug. 13.

Wednesday, August 7 Mildred Anderson and her brother Arthur Lundberg from Newington and Hartford, Conn., arrived at Joe Kallinowski for five days. Others visiting have been Bill Craib, Doris Lawrence, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Card, Charlie Wastilis, New Britain, Conn.

Thursday, August 8 we all went to Hartford to a delicious church supper. Friday, July 9 we went to a supper at Canton to another delicious supper. Saturday, August 10 we had dinner at Joe Kallinowski's and then we got Mary Smith, Charlie Wastilis came and we went to West Paris Grange Hall to the dance.

Sunday, August 11 I got Jeremy and Amanda Heath at Burger King and went to a surprise baby shower for Suzette Keniston at her sister's home. Vicki Fosters. A lot of nice gifts.

Saturday, August 11 the Bretts and Cumming's held a reunion at North Paris Community Hall. 35 were there. Monday, August 12 Sherry Thayer brought Jason. Earlier I took Jeremy and Amanda Heath to the baby sitters at Norway Lake. Jason visited his great grandparents James and Ruby Coffin I took him home later.

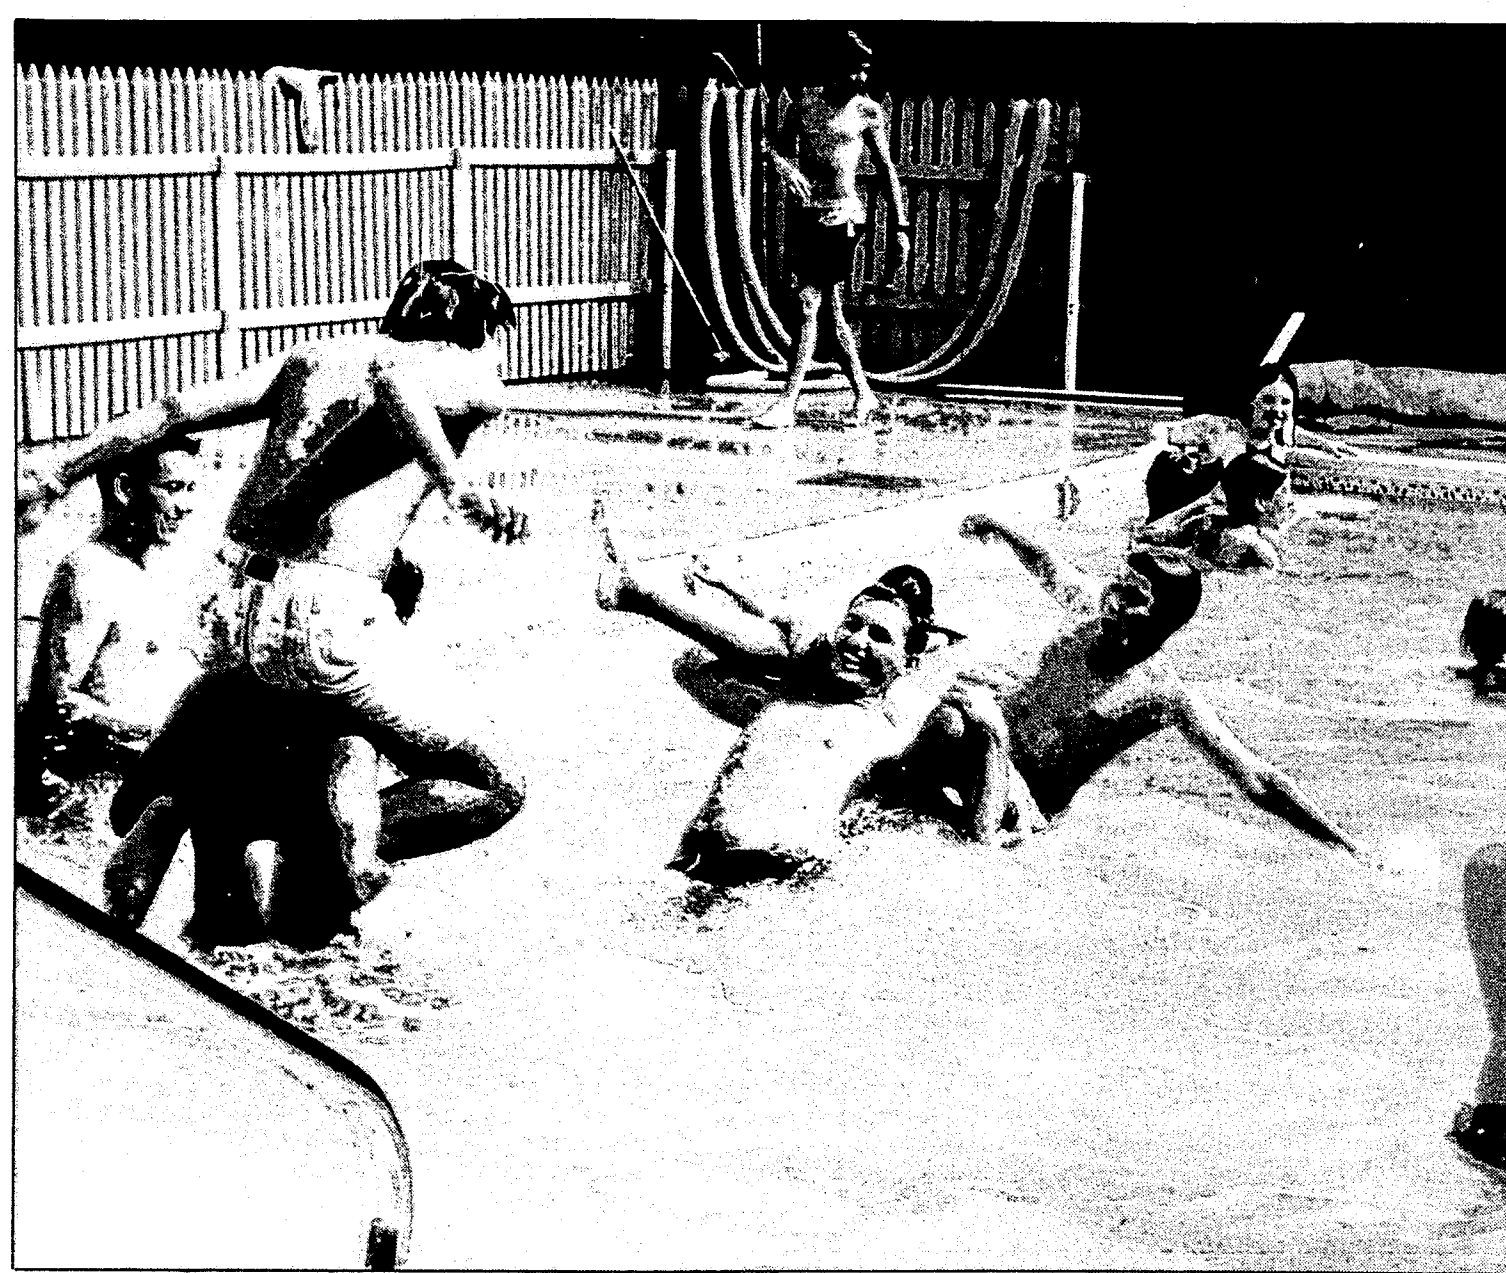

My callers, Mildred Anderson, Arthur Lundberg, Mike Spenser, Howard Anderson, Steve Miller, Kim Brown, Amanda and Jeremy Heath, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Penley, Sr.

Tuesday, August 13 four ladies from Dixfield visited Joe Kallinowski. Jackson Oja and his mother Beryl Oja were in Rhode Island the first of the week. They brought back grandchildren Jason and Kristin Cantwell for a few days visit.

The 66th annual reunion of the descendants of Asa Freeman and Florida Dunham Ellingwood was held at the North Paris Community Hall Sunday, August 11th with sixty six attending.

A picnic lunch was enjoyed with drinks provided. Table games were played by the youngsters while the older ones exchanged family news of the past years and admired the newest family members.

The business was called to order by president Jerry Ellingwood (great-grandson of Asa) updated material to the published genealogy was read. Anyone having additional material of the family branch is urged to submit in writing to Jerry, who is trying to

The oldest member present was Hazel Spiller, 96 years old. It was noted she goes for a mile hike every morning before breakfast. She is the granddaughter of Asa.

The youngest member was Joshua Christian Straiton, 6 weeks, the son of Raymond and Tina (Hall) Straiton. Tina is the great-granddaughter of Isaac Harris Ellingwood.

Coming the furthest was Austin and Laura Hamlin from Hudson, Fla. Other new family members present was Alexander Lee Ellingwood, son of Lee and Holly Ellingwood.

There were four members whom have passed on this last year: John Haney, Ann Benton, Cynthia Oja and Don Richards. They were remembered in a moment of silence. Dick Carter's grandson has been selected for the foreign exchange student program.

It was suggested a different place be found to hold the reunion where more activities could be enjoyed and the reunion be held regardless of the weather. Avis Ellingwood was appointed to look into this matter.

New officers elected were: president, Jerry Ellingwood; vice president, Lee Ellingwood; sec/treas, Bonnie Ellingwood Sanborn. The Ellingwood reunion is held every year on the second weekend of August.

SALE P22-91-1

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO SELL SURPLUS PROPERTY

The following described structure is surplus to the needs of the White Mountain National Forest, and the Federal Government is no longer needed nor is it suitable for any other official purpose.

1. Two story house, barn, and single story mud room, all attached, located 1/2 mile off Virginia Lake Road, in the Town of Stoneham, ME. The lodge is approximately 200 yards to the left.

The house is two story approximately 24'x34'. The mud room is 12'x12'. The barn is two story approximately 20'x24'. The siding is wood; the roof is asphalt shingled.

The cabin will very likely require disassembly to remove. The entrance road will require some clearing for removal.

The Forest Service is offering the cabin for sale, but not the underlying or surrounding land.

Anyone interested is requested and urged to inspect the cabin and site location, so that he may intelligently determine value versus cost of removal and site cleanup. The cabin must be removed by December 31, 1991. The site must be cleaned up by that date. Time extensions will not be considered.

The cabin will be sold to the purchaser making the highest lump sum bid. The Forest Service will consider selling the cabin to a purchaser for the consideration of removing it and cleaning up the site.

NOTE: If the cabin is not sold, the Forest Service will remove and destroy it. Sale will take place on September 11, 1991 at 2:00 p.m. in the Lacombe Federal Building, Lacombe, NH. Sale is by sealed bid. The cabin and any debris must be entirely removed. The removal and site cleanup will be subject to the inspection and administration of the District Ranger, Chad Converse. He will be the Forest Service officer in charge of administering the removal. Pre-bid inspections should be arranged through the District Ranger, Bridge St., Bethel, ME. Telephone 824-2134. Copies of the bid may be obtained from the District Ranger's Office.
